ther predicted an extra fine day, and so it turned out to be.

THE PARADE

The first big item on the programme was the mass parade, in which detachments from the warships in port, ex-service soldiers and sailors, the city Brigades, Boy Scouts, and Girl Guides took part. It is estimated that close on 2,500 were under marching orders; while ten thousand persons crowded the cross streets, hoping to get a favorable view of the big military demonstration. At nine o'clock the various units, under command of Colonel W. F. Rendell, assembled on the Promenade near the Railway Station in the West end of the city and there they were assigned to their positions as follows.

Mounted Police
Band, H. M. S. Constance
Blue Jackets H. M. S. Constance
Marines, H. M. S. Constance
French Naval Detachment
American Naval Detachment
C. L. B. Band
C. C. C. Band
Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve
Mercantile Marine
Details of Imperial, Colonial and Allied Forces
1 and 2 Co's Royal Nfld. Regiment
Highlander's Pipe Band
Mount Cashel Band
Guard of Honour and Colour Party
S. A. Band
3 and 4 Co's Royal Nfld. Regiment
Newfoundland Forestry Corps
Sea Scouts
The Church Lads' Brigade, Catholic Cadets, Newfoundland Highlanders, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, with delegations from Harbor Grace, Bay Roberts, and Carbonear, were lined up in the vicinity of Queen Street, and as the parade proceeded East along Water Street they fell into line.

The programme called for the vanguard of the parade to reach the Court House by 10 o'clock, in front of which, on a specially erected platform, Field Marshall Earl Haig was to take the salute. A few minutes of ten the Earl and Countess Haig, with attendants arrived by motor car to the Juckworth Street entrance of the Court House. They passed through the Magistrates' Court and on to the Colonial Secretary's Office, where they were met by the Hon. J. R. Bennett, who, a few minutes later, conducted the party to the platform.

From this point many were afforded a first opportunity to see the Earl; the camera men were much in evidence, and some excellent views of the initial part of a memorable day were obtained. Almost to the minute the Band of H.M.S. Constance came in sight, with the various units following. The C.L.B. drew out from the parade here, and until the last Girl Guides had passed continued to play the "Banks of Newfoundland."

THE PARADE REACHES THE MEMORIAL SITE

The parade reached the memorial site on schedule time. Superintendent O'Neill of the police, with a number of picked officers and men, kept the traffic in splendid discipline. Not a fraction of the thousands who were in the vicinity were able to get a view of the unveiling ceremony, but their hearts were filled with sorrow for the boys who had trod the paths of duty, even to paying the Supreme Sacrifice; and pride in those who had been spared to take part in the memorial service which was about to be conducted to the sacred memory of their fallen comrades in arms.

Precisely at the appointed hour His Excellency the Governor and Earl Haig arrived and were received with presented arms by the Guard of Honour. At the base of the Memorial had assembled many prominent in Church and State, included in which was the Prime Minister, Hon. W. S. Monroe, Hon. A.E. Hickman, Hon. J. D. Ryan President of the Legislative Council, Mayor Cook, the American and French Consuls, the Captains of the English, American and French warships in port, the British Attaché at Washington, R. G. Rendell, Esq., C.B.E., Chairman, and Mr. P. E.

Outerbridge, Secretary of the Newfoundland War Memorial Committee. His Lordship Bishop White, and Canon Bolt, His Lordship Bishop March, and Monsignor McCarthy, Rev. Ezra Broughton, President Methodist Conference and Rev. Dr. Fenwick.

Members of the Executive Government and many others prominent in the social and political life of the Colony had secured seats in the windows of the adjoining residences and places of business, and it is safe to say that no such spectacular and memorable gathering was ever witnessed in St. John's.

Immediately the Field Marshal and His Excellency had taken their places the massed bands played a verse of Kipling's Recessional which was set to the music "Militia." Then the C.B.E., Chairman, and Mr. P. E.

July 1st, 1924, the day which Newfoundland has set apart to honor those gallant sons of Terra Nova who gave their lives for the cause of civilization, the Empire and their own dear Island Home, this year will be especially remembered, as a day made notably historic and sacred, because on that date was unveiled by Earl Haig our National War Memorial. This is not the time to discuss the valuable services rendered by our public spirited and patriotic men and women, who gave so generously of their time and substance to see to it that the Sailors and Soldiers who fought and died in the World War should have their memories kept green, as an object lesson to those who come after them, and to the further purpose, that the sacrifice which they made will be to all lovers of Justice and Right an eternal reminder of duty well done.

"Judge of the Nations, spare us yet, Lest we forget—lest we forget."

With the dawn, from every section of the city and suburbs came the people wending their way towards Water Street and vantage points near the historic Beach Hill, where the memorial pile stands. Since Earl Haig, our distinguished visitor and his gracious lady set foot on our shore last Sunday morning, the weather conditions have been as near perfect as could possibly be expected in a land where, according to tradition and some writers, fog and fish were our only distinguishing characteristics. Tuesday opened dull, but those who were able to judge was

CHAPTER VIII.

"You Love Me," She said

"I don't know!" she murmured, almost inaudibly. "I don't know! It—it is all so sudden—so unexpected! I did not think you—" The crimson stole to her face, and her head dropped in sweet confusion and sweeter shame, so that, seeing it, he had hard work to keep from clasping her in his arms. But he dared not to risk it, dared not frighten this beautiful, timid bird floating beyond his reach, but whom he hoped to cage within his heart.

"Tell me, Jess; answer me!" he said. "But I will be very gentle, very patient! I will not press you, will not force you to answer. Don't you know whether you love me or not, Jess?" "No," she breathed. "But I think—" He drew her nearer to him, would have pressed the kiss, that would have sealed her lips, upon the quivering lips, but she put her hand against his breast, and with gentle pressure kept her lips from him.

"Wait!" she panted. "Let me tell you! You shall decide. In truth, I do not know. You are—the first who has ever spoken to be of—love!" Her eyes fell, but she raised them heavily, and looked up at him, with divine modesty and solemnity. "Until I came down here to my father, I had never met anyone who could speak to me—why, I am a schoolgirl still! And how can I know whether—whether I—"

"Dearest!" he breathed gently. "But go on; I shall be very patient."

"When you—you were kind to me in the train, I thought of you—I wondered who you were; that is all. I thought I should not have cared if I had never seen you again. Then there was the ball. And—and, somehow, I was glad when you came in. Even when—when we quarreled. I was not so angry as I should have been—was I?"

"Dearest!" was all he could say; and thought hope was beginning to flame within his breast he still restrained himself.

"Then"—she glanced over her shoulder at the ledge of rock—"then you came the other day and saved me, when I was almost dead with fear, and—and—I was glad—glad that it was you and not another man. Oh! Stop—wait! Let me tell you all! You shall decide!"

"Go on, dearest."

"Since then I have—have thought of you every day; and last night—" She stopped, and looked at him half troubled.

"Well?" he whispered. "Last night? Tell me, Jess—were you angry with me?"

"No," she said, as if she had vowed to tell the whole truth.

"Were you sorry?"

"No."

His hands laid over hers, still on his breast, grew tighter.

"Would you have been sorry if I had not come this morning, Jess, if, say, I had met with an accident, been thrown from my horse, or—or—been shot?"

She shuddered, and drew a little nearer to him.

"Ah—don't!" she wailed. "It is cruel—cruel to say that!"

His arms closed around her, and he gathered her close to him.

"Jess, Jess! My dearest—my darling!" he said with a passionate catch in his voice. "I have decided it! It is—you love me! You love me, a little only, perhaps—not as I love you! But you love me, dearest! Say it, Jess—whisper it! Say 'Yes, Bruce, I love you.'"

With her face hidden on his breast she whispered:

"Yes, Bruce, I love you!"

"Give me one kiss that I may believe it."

She blushed over face and neck and seemed to think for a moment—she had never kissed any man excepting her father—then she raised herself on tiptoe, and touched his lips with hers—timidly, modestly. And the kiss—the first pure kiss he had received since his mother's death—went straight to the heart of Bruce Ravenhurst, and filled it with a joy too sacred to be lightly written of.

"My Jess! My angel!" he murmured hoarsely, brokenly; and he returned the kiss, not with the violence of passion, but with the reverence of true and sacred love.

He drew her to the bank, and she sat down, and he lay at her feet, her hand clasped in his, his eyes dwelling on hers, and so they remained in silence for a time, while the birds and the river sang Nature's psalm of love, and then unspoken through its pearly clouds or if in benediction and consecration.

"By George! Is there any man in this wide world half so happy as I am at this moment?" he said at last.

"Tell me, Jess—you are not sorry?"

"Sorry?" She looked down at the handsome face upturned to hers with a subdued rapture in her eyes—not gray now, but a tender, violet hue.

"No, I am not sorry."

"And, please God, you never shall be, dearest!" he said, pressing his lips to her hand. "From this moment I am going to devote my life to making you happy."

"It will not be very hard work," she said, with a smile of mingled archness and tenderness. "You have only to go on loving me—Bruce!"

He had hard work at that moment at any rate, to refrain from putting his arms round her and crushing her to him.

"Go on loving me, dearest!" he said with a laugh. "Yes, that will be easy enough. Why, you witch, I wonder whether you have any idea how bewitching, how beautiful you are!" She looked at him doubtfully.

"Oh! no, no!" she said, half smiling, half anxiously. "You think so because—because—"

"I love you, eh?" He laughed, and stretching himself at full length, looked up at her with love-lit, admiring eyes. "Oh, no! I am not the only one, Jess. There is my father—"

"The earl," she said, as if the words had reminded her that there were other persons existing in this strangely beautiful world than this king of hers. "Bruce—will he—will your father be glad; or will he be sorry, angry? I have not thought of that! I have not thought of anything but—"

"Me?" he said, softly, touched to the heart by her sweet, girlish frankness, her absolute confidence and surrender.

"Yes, What will he say—Bruce?"

"His name came with delicious hesitation from her lips. "I know what a difference there is between us! My father has spoken of it more than once. You are a nobleman, and I—Will your father be angry?"

"Jess," he said, "set your mind at rest on that score." He spoke with a sudden gravity that made Jess look at him with faint wonder. "My father fell in love with you at first sight, and he will be glad—glad I say, beyond words, when I tell him that you have promised to be my wife."

"That is strange!" she said dreamily. "Why should he be? There must be so many women better fitted to be your—wife than I am! Think of all the grand ladies you have met, Bruce, and then think of poor little me! Only just from school, and knowing nothing of the world—your world especially. No, dearest—the word has slipped out, and as she heard it the blush rose to her face, and she looked away—"no; I am not worthy to be your wife."

He took the edge of her dress and kissed it, with a sudden pallor in his face.

"Never say that again, Jess," he said, almost sternly. "It—it sounds like mockery to me!"

"Mockery?" she echoed, gazing at him wonderingly, with her pure, innocent eyes.

"Yes," he responded. "Mockery. Jess. No man is worthy of an innocent, pure-hearted girl. Mark me—no man! And I am the most unworthy."

"Why what have you been doing?" she said. "It is anything dreadful? Stop; let me think—you look so grave, so stern." Her fingers touched his hair softly, timidly, and his head bent lower under the caress. "I think I could tell you all your faults," she said. "Shall I? I will, if you will promise not to retaliate, and tell me mine."

"Go on," he said.

"To begin with, then," she said, with an air of gravity belied by the smile in her eyes. "I should think you were very lazy."

"Right, the first time," he said. "I am the laziest beggar under the sun." (To be continued.)

$35,000,000 To University Donated By Rockefeller

CHICAGO, June 27 (AP)—Urging adoption by the city of Chicago of the University of Chicago "in fact as well as in name," President Ernest De Witt Burton brought out that John D. Rockefeller has given $35,000,000 to the institution, "a sum almost or quite without parallel in the whole history of education."

President Burton made the statement after announcing that Mr. Rockefeller had discontinued his gifts, that the university has no right of further approach to the founders as individuals, "and less reason to make such an approach to Mr. Rockefeller." To the university's resources of approximately $54,000,000, President Burton said, "there should be added within the next ten or 15 years at least an equal amount," and for this sum "we must look largely in Chicago."

"When in December, 1910, Mr. Rockefeller promised to give the university the sum of $10,000,000 in ten annual payments, he accompanied this pledge with a statement that this was his final gift, and commended the university to the friendly citizens of Chicago as those to whom it should look for the means with which to insure its future development," President Burton asserted. "In pursuance of this statement" and policy Mr. Rockefeller discontinued his gifts.

"It is but reasonable that the city whose name it bears and whose citizens have already shown their interest in it, by many generous gifts, should adopt the university as their own. The cost of education rises with startling rapidity as one passes upward from school to college, and from college to graduate and professional school."

Prohibition In Saskatchewan To Be Decided by Plebiscite

REGINA, Sask., June 27 (AP)—The eyes of students of prohibition throughout the world are turned on Saskatchewan to see whether this province will follow Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia in turning to government sale as the best method of dealing with liquor. The question will be before the voters in a provincial plebiscite July 16.

The province of Saskatchewan has been dry since 1916. A plebiscite in 1920 continued the dry regime by a vote of 86,949 to 55,259. Last year a petition for sale of liquor under provincial control was denied by the Saskatchewan government. When the province was made dry and when it was kept so, women voted, as they will in July.

Quebec has never been dry, but adopted government sale to meet criticisms of the liquor traffic. Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia adopted government dispensaries after trying "bone-dry" prohibition.

Lloyd George States Plans

Summarized Present Political Situation as Most Confused in History.

LLANDRINDOD, Wales, June 18.—Addressing 400 delegates to the conference of Welsh Liberals here Saturday Lloyd George outlined the essentials and sounded the new keynotes of Liberal policy. The former Premier summarized the present political situation as the most confused in history. He ridiculed the Conservative leader, Baldwin, talking Socialism, while the Socialist MacDonald was "playing the role of a timid Conservative." He urged a closer re-union of both wings of the Liberal party.

"Rusty Chains"
The speaker stressed the necessity of modernizing the land laws, which he characterized as "rusty chains of feudalism, weighing down life in the villages." He criticized the rapacity of mine-owners, who held "the means to all monopolies. No wonder the miners voted for the most violent remedies. I am afraid the miners cannot depend upon the Socialists to assist in the riddance of these monopolies. The Socialists are too intent on creating trusts of their own, which will be equally dangerous notwithstanding that a large number of people are interested in them."

Monopoly Problem.
The Liberal leader declared Labor's plans to solve both the mining and housing problems were equivalent to creating monopolies. "They fight monopolies by means of creating monopolies. Britain cannot look to the Tories for freedom, therefore Liberalism is alone capable of extricating the country from the thicket monopolies."

Obliging

A young man from the country, walking along a City street, stopped in front of the fire-station and looked in.

"D'ye have many fires in town?" he asked.

"Yes, we have them pretty often," replied the fireman.

"Ever try to see how quick you can get out?"

"Oh, yes!"

At that moment an alarm was sounded. At the first stroke of the gong the men rushed to their posts, the doors of the station opened, and within a few seconds men and engine were speeding down the street.

The young man watched the proceedings with admiration.

"Well," he exclaimed, "there ain't many places where they'd go to all the trouble to show a stranger what they can do!"

S.s. Heckla sailed from Botwood this a.m. for Bathurst, N.B., with 911 tons ground wood pulp from A. E. Reed Co.

S.s. Nyhavn entered at Corner Brook on the 2nd inst. with general cargo from Halifax for the Power & Paper Co.

Many of the passengers who arrived by the Rosalind to-day were keenly disappointed that they did not reach the city in time for the Haig celebrations.

HAIG REGATTA IS SPLENDID SUCCESS

Delightful weather conditions helped to make the Haig Regatta one of the most enjoyable features of the week's celebrations. The gathering at the Lakeside was as large as the usual Annual Regatta attendance and all enjoyed themselves fully. The different races were run off without a hitch and were keenly contested. The big attraction was, of course, the presence of Earl and Lady Haig.

A special feature was the exhibiting of log rolling by Mr. Leslie Rice, of Grand Falls, who is an ex-soldier. Mr. Rice gave a very interesting exhibition and showed himself a master of the work. All phases were gone through, rolling, steering and even falling in the water and climbing on again. He got in all positions on the log, standing, sitting and lying down. At the close of his performance he was loudly cheered. As an appreciation of his work, he was presented by Mr. Hiccock with a silver match box.

EX-SERVICE RACE.

Three crews entered this race:—Portugal Cove Navy, in the Cadet, and army crews in the Nellie R. and Red Cross. To the buoys it was a good race, but coming home the Portugal Cove men got a good lead and finished up with a safe margin, with the Nellie R. second and Red Cross third. Time 11:01.

JUVENILES

Four crews lined up at the foot of the pond for a dash up, viz.—Cadet (B.I.S.); Nellie R. (East End); Red Cross (Southside); Guard (Star).

This was the most closely contested race for the day, the Nellie R. being only a couple of strokes ahead of the Red Cross, with the Guard third and Cadet last. Time 5:40 2-5.

AMATEUR

Four crews were in this race, Cadet (St. Bon's); Nellie R. (A. Wright); Guard (Feldians); Red Cross (A. Martin). The race was a good one and had an exciting finish. The Cadet was first, followed by the Nellie R., Guard and Red Cross in the order named.

Cadet—P. Brown, (cox.); J. Howlett, (stroke); S. Ryan, C. Cahill, J. Canning, T. Ryan, K. McGrath. Time 10:55 2-5.

Nellie R.—J. Hussey, (cox.); A. Wight, (stroke); H. Diamond, H. Brown, N. Feaver, R. Harvey.

LOG ROLLING EXHIBITION.

The four brigades were represented in this race. The Guards in the Guard; C. L. B. in the Red Cross; Highlanders in the Nellie R. and Cadets in the Cadet. The race was won easily by the Guards, but a good

EX-BRIGADE.

Three crews from H. M. S. Constance rowed this race, crews of blue jackets being in the Guard and Nellie R. and Marine in the Cadet. The race was a good one, and the sailors made a remarkable showing in boats they were unaccustomed to. The Nellie R. was first, with the Guard second and Cadet last. This boat got foul of the buoy and had much delay there. Time 11:03.

Nellie R.—E. Skiffington, (cox.); Green (stroke); Cass, Harrold, Allingham, Stephenson, Callow.

DISTRICT.

Only two crews entered this race, the East End in the Red Cross and the Central in the Nellie R. The latter crew was picked up to make a race and was no match for their opponents. However, they put up a good race. Time 10:14.

Red Cross—L. Rogers, stroke; T. Kearsey, stroke; G. Clooney, H. Burt, H. Strange, W. Martin, F. Burt.

Nellie R.—P. Brown, cox; T. Picco stroke; B. Hart, J. Howlett, C. Chalk, S. Ryan, C. Picco.

Some difficulty was experienced in getting crews to enter the championship race and it was called off the programme.

The prizes were presented by Countess Haig, who with Earl Haig, personally congratulated the crews on their performances.

At the close Earl Haig thanked the Regatta Committee and the public for the opportunity afforded him and Countess Haig of spending such an enjoyable afternoon. He then called for cheers for Colonel Nangle, President Hiccock and Regatta Committee, which were given with a will. President Hiccock asked for cheers for Earl and Countess Haig and His Excellency and Lady Allardye, which were readily and heartily given. President Hiccock then thanked all who had

No Clergymen Available, Says Bishop of Clogher

DUBLIN, June 26.—The Protestant Bishop of Clogher, Dr. MacManaway, has struck a note of alarm in referring to the growing shortage of clergymen in the Church of Ireland. He has five vacant parishes in his diocese and "not a single suitable man in view for any of them." In his university days in Trinity College, he says, there were about 150 men preparing for the ministry. Now there are only from 20 to 30.

"It requires," the Bishop declared, "but a simple calculation to show that if this state of things continued for a comparatively short number of years the work of the Church would come to a stop."

A Lighthouse Builder

Two hundred years ago was born John Smeaton, an engineer, who erected his own monument in the third Eddystone lighthouse.

Smeaton's genius was almost lost to the nation, as his father, an attorney, was desirous that his son should follow the law, but, fortunately, John Smeaton was allowed to follow his natural bent, rising to eminence from the humble position of a mathematical instrument maker.

The Mount Cashel Band was present during the afternoon and supplied excellent music.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, THURSDAY, JULY 3rd., 1924.

MEMORIAL DAY

Tuesday, July 1st, 1924, will ever be a memorable day in the history of Terra Nova. The unveiling of the National War Memorial to those who paid the supreme sacrifice in the great war would set the day apart from and above even all other memorial days, sacred as these should be in the memories of citizens.

The deeply impressive memorial ceremony of Tuesday was made more impressive and distinguished by the presence of Field Marshal Earl Haig, under whose command the united forces of the Empire were led to victory.

"It is an honor which I deeply appreciate," said Earl Haig, in unveiling the National War Memorial, "to be given this opportunity to associate myself with the tribute which Newfoundland pays to her gallant dead." And Newfoundland likewise deems it an honor that Britain's great soldier should take part in the solemn ceremony, who unwounded or marked with the scars of battle had come from all sections of the country to take part therein.

Public congratulations are due, in the fullest measure, to the Great War Veterans' Association and to the Executive Committee of the Memorial Fund upon the general success which has attended their efforts to consummate the public aspirations since the armistice, viz., the erection of a National War Memorial; to Lieutenant-Colonel Nangle, (who has ever laboured unremittingly in this respect and to whose interest is due, in a large measure, the successful culmination of this public achievement,) and also to Messrs. R. G. Rendell, P. E. Outerbridge and various other citizens, too much credit cannot be accorded. They have led in the achievement of a splendid task, crowned by the admirable execution of the Memorial Day programme.

The Memorial now stands. It is now for us to recognise its true meaning, its real appeal to patriotism, duty and sacrifice on behalf of principles, which, faithfully adhered to, will make for a better future and a better world.

COUNTRY'S TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF GALLANT DEAD IS MAGNIFICENT WORK

choir, without musical accompaniment, sung two verses. Then, with the band, the remaining verses were sung. This part of the program was most inspiring and many handkerchiefs were in evidence to wipe away the tears which fond memory brought to the eyes of relatives and friends of the loved ones gone before. The choir, conducted by Mr. Hutton, did splendidly, and the singing was greatly enjoyed by those who were privileged to hear it. The verses sung were as follows:

God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far flung battle-line,
Beneath whose awful Hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The Captains and the Kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire;
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of Nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee
in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust,
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding, calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word—
Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!

Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!

R. G. Rendell, Esq., C.B.E., Chairman, addressed His Excellency the Governor on behalf of the War Memorial Committee, asking His Excellency to accept the Memorial, on behalf of the people of Newfoundland, and expressed the hope that it would serve as a reminder of those brave men, who fought for King and Country, and who laid down their lives in the cause of freedom and justice.

His Excellency accepted the Memorial in the following words:

GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS

Mr. Chairman,
As His Majesty's Representative I formally accept on behalf of the people of Newfoundland and its dependencies this National War Memorial. Close to this historic and commanding spot Sir Humphrey Gilbert landed in August, 1583, and in taking possession in the name of his Sovereign, Queen Elizabeth, of this New Found Land, thereby founded our Overseas Empire.

Every Newfoundland knows what this Memorial represents, and we are profoundly grateful that it is to be unveiled to-day by one who led our armies to victory and who knows the true worth of those who went Overseas and what their going meant to their Empire and to you.

It is my proud privilege to thank Field Marshall Earl Haig in your name for coming here, and later I will call on him to unveil our National War Memorial.

At the request of His Excellency, the following dedicatory ceremony was then proceeded with:

Prayer by Rev. E. Broughton, President Methodist Conference

Almighty God, Ruler of Nations, we come to Thee with grateful hearts. On this day of Commemoration we call upon all that is within us to give thanks at the remembrance of Thy Holiness. Upon this high and holy day in our country's history, we bless Thee for those who counted not their lives dear unto them, and came not home again. May their names and their sacrifices, of which this Memorial reminds us, be forever entwined with all our holiest and purest thoughts.

Forbid it, Lord, that we should ever forget what they have secured for us and for the world. Make us worthy of the task they have bequeathed to us. Uplifted by their example, inspired by their memory, may we be strong to preserve and to pass on to those who come after us, the priceless blessing they have won. This was followed by the Lord's Prayer.

Prayer by the Rt. Rev. J. March, D.

D., Bishop of Harbor Grace
Almighty God, with whom do live the spirits of just men made perfect after they are delivered from their earthly bodies, and with whom the souls of the faithful are in joy and felicity; we yield Thee hearty thanks for the noble example of those our brethren who laid down their lives for their King and Country. Grant them, O Lord, eternal rest; and we humbly beseech Thee, of Thy gracious goodness, shortly to accomplish the number of Thine elect, and to hasten Thy Kingdom. And we beseech Thee to teach us who survive so to number our days that with them we may in the end attain everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

Dedication by the Rt. Rev. the Lord

Bishop of Newfoundland

Almighty and everlasting God, we give Thee humble thanks for the memory and good example of Thy servants who have laid down their lives in the service of our country. We bless thee for their courage and devotion; accept their sacrifice, we pray Thee; let it not be in vain that they have died in the cause of righteousness and honor. And as they have come out of great tribulation grant them, O Lord, that they may be pardoned and cleansed by the blood of the Lamb, and received into Thy everlasting mercy; through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom, with Thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honor and glory, world without end. Amen.

To the Glory of God and in grateful memory of those who gave their lives for King and Country and a Righteous Cause I dedicate this Memorial. May all who look upon it realize the peace of sins forgiven, the joy of faithful service, and the power of the endless life, to which may God vouchsafe to bring us all; through Jesus Christ our Lord Amen.

The Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost be with us all now and evermore. Amen.

The firing party then fired three volleys, after which the Last Post was rendered by a bugler, who was stationed some distance away. Two minutes' silence was then observed; after which His Excellency asked Field Marshal Earl Haig to unveil the Memorial. Previous to doing this, Earl Haig delivered an address as follows:

EARL HAIG'S ADDRESS

Your Excellency, Colonel Nangle, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is an honour which I deeply appreciate to be given this opportunity to associate myself with the tribute which Newfoundland pays to her gallant dead.

lant dead.

It has been my privilege in the course of the past five years to unveil many war memorials in different parts of Great Britain. On each occasion I have found among those who attended emotions significant, not only of gratitude and reverence towards their fallen comrades, but of a resolve to turn the hard lessons of war to good account, and to keep alive the memory of their dead as an encouragement and exhortation.

I do not doubt the same feelings are present among you. Yet to me this occasion has, in addition, a special significance of its own. In the days when the whole Empire was endangered, though the peril lay closest from the Old Country from which I come, your young men—and not all of them so very young—joined up in their thousands to serve Newfoundland and the Empire by Sea and Land, and to give a helping hand to the Old Country in the hour of her trial.

I do not say that such action was unexpected of you. Newfoundland, the oldest of British Overseas Dominions, has too long a tradition of loyalty to the flag for any other course to be open for her sons. But to-day, when the war and its sacrifices are over, the same sentiment inspires you. By your invitation to me to take part with you in this supreme act of homage to your fallen, you renew, when the strife is ended and the victory won, your old vows of comradeship and brotherhood with the crowded peoples of those old islands, across the Atlantic, whose faith and ideals are yours, whose heritage you share.

That is the special significance to me of this occasion. I am here not only as your old leader in the field, but as the representative, as I can fairly claim to be, of your comrades of the Armies of the Empire, those armies from Great Britain, and the other Dominions who fought with you the Empire's battles, and to-day, are proud to join with you in honoring brave sons of Newfoundland who died in the same cause to which they too gave so many of their dearest and their best.

There are many ties which unite the British Commonwealth of nations; but no bond should be stronger or more enduring than the bond of common service and common sacrifice to which, in all quarters of the world, memorials such as this bear lasting testimony.

RT. REV. THE BISHOP OF NEWFOUNDLAND

Newfoundland had her full share in the burden and suffering of the war. Wherever British ships fled the Empire flag, Newfoundland men sailed with them. Their battlefields bridge the oceans, and their graves are the seas of the world. No other Dominion has a finer record of sea service. No land breeds finer seamen. In no part of the Empire are the old sea traditions of the British race more splendidly upheld. It is only fitting that representatives of the British Navy should be here on this occasion.

There is no soldier who took part in the Great War but will readily acknowledge the magnificent work of the naval forces of the Empire. Will grudge them the honor which is their due. But for all that it is only natural that the first place in my own memory to-day is taken by the officers and men of the Newfoundland Battalion who fought so gallantly and well under my own command.

I am glad of this opportunity to thank them one and all for their loyal and devoted service. I thank too, those parents and relatives of theirs, who saw them grow to manhood and sent them forth to battle, for the sacrifice they also made. I rejoice with those whose sons and brothers returned to them in safety; and I offer to those who spent health and strength in the service of their country, and to the relatives of those who gave their lives, my earnest, heartfelt sympathy. It is the sympathy of a commander who knows what the battalion was called upon to do in the grim struggle in France and Flanders, and with what high courage and unflinching resolution all ranks of the battalion set themselves to accomplish all that was asked of them.

The best plans that leaders ever made, the most perfect organization and staff work, will not bring victory unless the regimental officers, and rank and file of their fighting units have confidence in their leaders, and are well trained and of stout heart. Those qualities were to be found in the Newfoundland battalion. I think I may claim they they reposed confidence in the commanders under whom they served. I know that they applied themselves with zeal to the difficult lessons of modern war and that they showed the utmost stout-ness in the service of their country, and to the relatives of those who gave their lives, my earnest, heartfelt sympathy. It is the sympathy of a commander who knows what the battalion was called upon to do in the grim struggle in France and Flanders, and with what high courage and unflinching resolution all ranks of the battalion set themselves to accomplish all that was asked of them.

Yet the position was held all through the day, with the knowledge that the line had given way over a wide area on their right, assailed in front and flank and rear, the units of the 29th Division maintained their line intact against a constant succession of attacks.

The next day brought no respite or relief, but the gallantry of the troops rose equal to all it was called upon to bear. It was recorded that nine separate assaults upon the Divisional front were beaten off on the 1st of December, and it was not until after nightfall after two days of heroic and successful resistance, that the Division was withdrawn under orders from the positions they had defended with such splendid and unforgettable resolution.

The story of the defence of Masnières, and of the part which the Newfoundland battalion played in it, is one which, I trust, will never be forgotten on our side of the Atlantic. It will serve to remind us in the Home Country that distance does not count when the honor and safety of the Empire is at stake, and that in the hands of our kinsmen from overseas the destinies of the Empire are in good keeping.

That story, and many another like it, will live while the Empire endures, an honor not only to the people of Newfoundland but to the stock from which they come. We have fought for the same faith. We have borne the same burden. We have made together the same sacrifice of blood. These are the lessons of this Memorial and of the countless others which in town and village, on battlefield and mountainside commemorate the Empire's dead. It is my earnest hope that future generations of our race, here and in all parts of the world where the British peoples have made their home, will find these memorials of the Great War something that will help them to maintain for all time the great ideal of mutual understanding, confidence and goodwill which inspired the men to whom this monument is raised.

In memory of our gallant comrades who gave their lives for King and Country, I unveil this Memorial.

Beautiful wreaths were next laid at the base of the Memorial by Field Marshal Haig, His Excellency the Governor, Officers of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, the Naval officers and men, Hon. the Prime Minister, W. S. Monroe, Mayor Cook and City Councillors, representatives of the various societies and private citizens. In fact, all the afternoon floral tributes in great profusion were delivered at the monument. The parade then moved off to Fort William, where it was dismissed; the Colour Party continuing on to Government House to deposit the Regimental colours, and the Brigades, Scouts and Guides proceeded to their headquarters and dispersed.

Haig Sports Witnessed by Immense Gathering

Never in the history of St. George's Field has a larger gathering of people been seen there than that which assembled on Tuesday afternoon to witness the sports which constituted one of the principal items on the Haig Week program.

At about 1 o'clock Earl and Countess Haig arrived, accompanied by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardye, Miss Allardye, Capt. Donald Simpson, Col. Talbot, Capt. Good fellow and Col. Nangle. A guard of honor consisting of veterans from Grand Falls was drawn up at the gate and was inspected by the party. On entering the field the Sports Committee was lined up and Earl Haig was introduced to each member. A specially raised platform had been built for the guests where they were conducted. As the party entered, the massed bands played the National Anthem.

Kenn contests were the order of the day and some local records were broken. The prize winners were:

100 Yards Dash—1st, G. Halley; 2nd, J. Herder. Time 10 3-5 secs.
Throwing the Javelin—1st, K. Good year, Grand Falls; 2nd, F. Coesfield, 101 feet, 6 inches.

Tug of War—Guards defeat Grand Falls, two straight pulls.
International Relay Race—Won by St. John's team, R. Martin, J. Canning, G. Halley J. Herder.

Tug of War—Guards defeat H.M.S. Constance, two straight pulls.
Three Mile Road Race—1st O'Toole 2nd C. Stone; 3rd H. Greens, H.M.S. Constance Time 16:07 1-5.

Ten Mile Walk—1st G. Varnell; 2nd T. Piercy; 3rd R. Piercy; 4th A. J. Gaddy, H.M.S. Constance. Time 1 hour 36 minutes 3-5 seconds.

After each event the prizes were presented by Countess Haig, who congratulated the winners on their success, as did Earl Haig and His Excellency the Governor.

The bands of the C.C.C., C.L.B., M.G.C.A. and Mount Cashel rendered very pleasant music throughout the evening. Whilst the ladies under the direction of Mrs. McKen, did a thriving business with refreshments. The programme concluded with cheers by the whole gathering for the distinguished visitors.

Drivers to Pilot Engines
Bearing Their Own Names

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Reviving a quaint custom of 50 years ago, the Long Island Railroad is designating its locomotives by name, instead of by number.

The return to the old-time system was decided upon as a worthy means of honoring veteran employees. The first locomotives to be rechristened, upon emerging from the shops with new paint carried the names "The Seaman Birchell" and "The Edward W. ulse" in gilt letters along their cabs and tenders.

Engineman Birchell has piloted Long Island trains for 43 years. He was the first to drive "The Seaman Birchell" after the rechristening, and will continue as its pilot on a passenger train on the Wading River branch.

Engineman Hulse became a railroadman in 1887. He will pilot "The Edward W. ulse" on the Spoken Express, a run he has held for 30 years.

CLOCKS AS CLERKS

The efficient business man nowadays, we hear, keeps an alarm clock in the office—not necessarily to wake him when it is time to go home, but as a reminder of appointments with callers.

The clock is ingeniously constructed, and if, say, you have to keep an appointment at 2.30, you merely insert a card in a slot opposite the half-hour mark, and forget it until the bell reminds you of your duty.

Methodist Conference

MONDAY, JUNE 30th.

Dr. Liddy addressed the Conference. About 10 per cent. of any English speaking country have the intellectual ability to benefit by a university education. About one per cent. take such a training. Probably less than that go from Newfoundland where there must be an unusual number of "mute inglorious Miltons." The glory of Scotland was that the humblest homes of that land demanded that there should be education. Mt. Allison last year introduced the practice of intelligence tests for every new student. The results have been very great in enabling the faculty in keeping track of the work of individuals. This is the first instance in Canada as is also the new four-year course of Bachelor of Science in Household Science. Mount Allison will hold her first Summer Session this year commencing July 6th. Dr. Liddy for a number of years has been the leader of a College Men's Bible-Class. There as in all life the emphasis has been and must be laid on conduct rather than theological theory.

Sometime ago a skilful driver lost his ball bearings from two wheels the other side of Topsail. He came to the city without any assistance whatever and without injury to the car. The secret was that every mile or so he repacked the space with hard grease. That is something of the function of a good presiding officer. President Broughton is an expert in this direction not because he is trained in the rules of order but because he uses grease. After all the sounds of grease and grace are so much alike that may be there is more than a school boy derivation in the suggestion.

A conference was suggested that one of those who takes quite a part in the debates should be arrested for arson. More seriously, there is no doubt that the men criticize each other sharply. On the other hand there is equally little doubt that it is a family affair and that the "brother" of address is also the brother of heart. In fact this is so real that sometimes there is a shade of danger of too great excuses being made when final decisions have to be made.

Rev. Walter Milson introduced his remarks with a humorous story of a Newfoundland reporter whose use of a big word in the wrong place made the speaker out to be of a most homely appearance. The reporter once knew a chief clown of a travelling circus was the greatly loved an elder of a sister church. His case was a fine instance of the union of true humour and real piety. So the Conference laughed and shouted amen alternately at brief intervals.

He had heard a lot of talk about the Government control of liquor. All that was meant by Government Control was Government Sale. The infamous business can never be controlled. The only way to cut off the tail of the liquor dog is right behind the ears. Gambling will damn a man as wholly and as quickly as liquor. Gambling includes lotteries. Gambling strips the shoes from children's feet no matter if it be on the floor of a dock, the parlor of a society woman or of a church bazaar.

"Nevertheless nothing in the above clauses shall be construed as applying to any charitable or religious purpose."

This is paragraph 42 section 7. of the Canadian Law. It's the joker so-called.

The Methodist Church needs no such protection.

All these matters would be bettered if only the revival fires burned. The only thing that makes a worth while ministry is the joy of seeing men and women brought to Christ. Men are not brought to Christ by Social Service but are brought into Social Service by coming to Christ.

Three young men who arrived on the Sachem to take up work in this Conference—Messrs. Young, Taylor and Peacock—were introduced.

AFTERNOON

The Orphanage report showed probably the best condition of affairs for many years. A credit balance in the finance department, improved grounds, reorganization of internal management and widely increased and quickened interest of the Board's constituency were all noted with delight. The officers were unanimously re-elected. Dr. Robinson, Mr. Philip Hudson and Mr. J. C. Pratt.

The Social Service Fund amounted to some $415.00 which is less than last year but that fund was greatly swelled last year by the visit of Dr. Goodwin, so that the fund stands as about normal.

Very kindly resolutions were passed expressing the pleasure of the Conference at the visits of Messrs. Strotzhard, Liddy, Milson and Dr. Heertz. The latter in reply made a short but as usual fiery response, his voice ringing across the Church like a great clarion. The well known singer, Earle Spicer, was also a visitor at Conference, greeting a dozen of his old friends from Mt. Allison.

EVENING

The Ordination service must always be the chief service of a Methodist Conference. When it ceases to attract the largest audience spiritual interests will be on the down grade. There were no signs of any such decadence on Monday evening. The crowd was good. The singing went with a swing. Eight senior men occupied the pulpit.

Mr. Lester Barry, B.A., was first called upon to state his experience. A Christian home at Greenspond, and the impression left by Messrs. E. Broughton and E. C. French, while they were on that Circuit. Later while working in St. John's and attending Wesley Church he made a clear decision to serve God and from that was rapidly pushed into the work.

Mr. Uriah Laite dated his choice to a walk across Random Island with Rev. A. S. Adams. Mr. William Soper was his Sunday School teacher in that early day and helped to make him what he was, as did Messrs. Newman and Dotebon, former Ministers under whom he sat.

Mr. Maxwell Parsons felt that all the currents of his life flowed toward the moment of his address. A widowed mother's prayers were answered in the little school house at Flatrock under the preaching of Rev. Ezra Broughton. A great critical time came in St. John's city, in George Street Sunday School, under the teaching of Mr. C. P. Ayre.

Mr. Jesse Reynolds, M. A., was the last of the four splendid candidates. His Sunday School teacher made a great impression by laying his hand upon his head and saying, "I hope you will be a Christian Minister." His day school teacher helped him to decide to unite with the Church. In the Church Rev. George Fraser moved him very powerfully even when very young.

These men in their order might be said to be exemplifications of the spirit of common sense, idealism, unction and philosophy. Specialists in each of these is needed that the work of the perfecting of the Saints may go on.

Question by question these men then answered. Individually the questions asked, upon which the congregation joined in the impressive responsive prayer, "Come Holy Ghost our Souls inspire," which would have been infinitely more impressive if the great audience present had more generally joined therein.

Those, in addition to the officers, who take part in each laying on of hands are chosen by the candidates. In one case it was pathetic to see a veteran of evidently feeble steps walking slowly back to his seat having laid his hands upon a youth whom he had influenced and was now to fill the veteran's place.

The charge was given by the ex-President. Rev. Sidney Bennett is an unusually fine specimen of physical manhood. His faith is as simple and forthright as his countenance. His first sentence "We are in need of men—men who will give honest attention to the finances of our country. We need men to sit down by the side of childhood and with its friendships. Above all the Church needs men. No Church can make Ministers. Like their Master it must be said of every Minister, 'My servant whom I have chosen.'"

The patriarchs colored the light that shined through them, but Jesus was the very effulgence of the Father's glory. The business of the Minister is to continue the revealing of the light. In many cases that light will have to be carried to the very depths of men's lives and that is only to be done by getting into the homes of the people and being willing at the call of every duty. Jesus could not save others but by spending himself, neither can you.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S MEETINGEARL HAIG ADDRESSES MEN AND RECEIVES PRESENTATION

As part of the week's programme a very successful and largely attended meeting of ex-service men was held at the C. L. B. Armoury on Tuesday night. When the Field Marshal arrived accompanied by Countess Haig, His Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardyce, Colonel Talbot, D.S.O., M.C., A.D.C., and Capt. Donald Simpson, B.E.S.L., he was met at the door by a guard of honor under Capt. G. C. Byrne, M.C., and conducted to the platform by Colonel Nangle, President of the G.W.V.A. As the party ascended the platform the C. L. B. Band rendered the "Banks of Newfoundland." On the platform were the Dominion Executive of the G. W. V. A. Colonel Nangle opened the meeting with a fine address in which he cordially welcomed the Commander in Chief to Newfoundland and hoped that his short stay here would be one of enjoyment. The veterans felt proud of the honor paid them by the visit of the distinguished soldier, who had come to unveil a memorial to their gallant comrades. Continuing, he made a strong appeal to all ex-service men to stand by the ideals for which they fought, and as they had proved themselves good soldiers to endeavour to acquire the same reputation as citizens. He then read several messages of greeting which he had received from various parts of the Empire. He then on behalf of the G. W. V. A. presented Earl Haig with a silver caribou mounted on a pedestal an exact replica of some of the Newfoundland memorials to be found in France. Earl Haig on rising was accorded a great ovation, the men cheered for their late commander in chief in true Newfoundland style. He first sincerely thanked the veterans for their excellent presentation which he much appreciated and would dearly prize as long as he lived, and then delivered the following address:

Earl Haig's Address

I am most grateful to you for your warm and friendly welcome. It is a very pleasant thing, after the successful meeting of the British Empire Service League in London last year, to be able to come here to this equally successful meeting and to find the Newfoundland branch of our League in so flourishing a condition. It is most encouraging to me. It makes me realise, too, by my own personal experiences, how much the British Empire Service League can do to make British ex-service men feel at home all the world over, and to make them realise wherever they may be that they have good friends and willing helpers among their old comrades of the war.

I shall be able to take back a very heartening report to our London Headquarters, one that will spur all there to yet greater efforts to establish the League as a real and lasting success. We have, no doubt, big difficulties to contend with in the vast distances which separate our various branches from each other. But we have enormous opportunities also, and what you have done here itself shows that it is worth while to make an effort to turn those opportunities to good account.

The first step, undoubtedly, is the formation of a strong and really representative association of ex-service men in each constituent part of the Empire. That has largely been done, though there is still room for improvement in numbers. Every ex-service man ought to belong to the local branch of the ex-service men's association of his country, not only for his own sake, but for the sake of his old war comrades. That at any rate should be our ideal, for the stronger each association is the more powerfully it will be able to help ex-service men in their own country, and the more useful will be the British Empire Service League to the ex-service men of the Empire as a whole.

You know yourselves whether your own ex-service association is yet as strong numerically as it could be and ought to be, and I am quite sure that you will all do your utmost to increase its membership. I can honestly say that the British Legion at home since its creation by the amalgamation of the various separate ex-service organisations previously existing, has been of real value to the ex-service men of the home countries, and in matters of employment, pensions and the like has been able to exert a powerful influence for the benefit not only of its members, but of all ex-service men.

But the ideals of ex-service men's organisations, as I understand them, are not limited to helping ex-service men, whether members of their own respective associations or resident of their own respective countries. We try to look further afield, and to find a way of helping all ex-service men to whatever part of the Empire they belong. That is where our British Empire Service League comes in. That should be one of the first objects of its endeavour.

There are plenty of directions in which this object can be pursued. We can arrange for a helping hand to be given to ex-service men newly arrived in a country that is strange to them. We can discuss together, whether in conference or by correspondence, many matters of general concern to ex-service men wherever they may be. We can compare our different experiences and learn from each other's successes our mistakes, and when we have found a case of real hardship or a good cause we can combine to exert for a worthy end the pressure of the combined opinion of ex-service men, not of one country alone, but of the whole of our vast Empire.

And our opportunities for Empire service go still further even than that. We are ex-service men, but we are also citizens of the Empire, and by keeping alive among ourselves the remembrance of our old comradeship we are helping to strengthen the bonds of affection and understanding which keep our Empire together.

In the happiest and most united of families mistakes and misunderstandings must at times arise; but the more means a family has, whether it be a family of individuals or of nations, of keeping in touch and preserving old associations, the less frequent misunderstandings will be and the more easily they will be reconciled when they do occur. It is our part, as members of the League, to preserve our understanding of each other, and as old comrades to make allowances if mistakes at times are made.

We, on our side of the Atlantic cannot forget the splendid way in which you came to help us when we most had need of help. No doubt, the fortunes of Newfoundland and of Canada and of all the other Dominions were at stake as well as the fortunes of the British Isles; but we like to think, and indeed we do believe that there was something more in it than that. That material considerations were not all that swayed you; but that you felt also the pull of kinship and the influence of like ideals. We rejoice that there should be strong ex-service men's associations here on this side too. We of the British Legion send greetings to you here in Newfoundland and to our comrades also in the great neighbouring Dominion of Canada. We remember the old days when Newfoundland men fought in a British Division; when Canadian Divisions made the Vimy Ridge a part of the history of their Dominion, and in defence of Arras in the Spring of 1913 stood between the Empire and defeat.

We remember these things with gratitude, and our comrades with affection. We hope that they will always serve as a bond between us, and that our lasting comradeship will help to bridge the waters that lie between our countries. In matters of Empire, we ex-service men stand for prevention rather than cure. It is easier to avoid quarrels than to patch them up again when bad blood has once been made. That is the reason why a policeman is always a more popular person than a detective. The one keeps the peace before mischief is done. The other only comes on to the scene after the crime has been committed. We want to be the policeman of the Empire, to keep peace among our family of nations and a proper brotherly feeling among their individual members.

And our ideals go further still than that. We believe that we ex-service men, who know what war really is, though we will not shrink from it in a just and worthy cause, yet can be and should be a powerful influence working for world peace. For this reason we seek to keep touch also with the ex-service men of other countries, who fought beside us in the Great War. Particularly are we anxious to preserve our old associations and friendship with the ex-service men of the United States of America, many of whom passed part of their time of service in the British area in France.

I am not likely to forget the American troops who, out of pure zeal for battle, joined the Australians in the successful attack on Hamel in July 1918 without orders, and left it to me to explain to the American Command how it was that they became involved! None of us will forget the splendid American Divisions, who took part with us in the great victorious advance which started on the 8th of August, 1918, and ended three months later in the triumph of the Allied cause.

A new page has been written in the history of American and British relations. We who fought each other, have fought together, not for self-interest, but for principle and for a faith in the future development of the human race which we share in common, and which is the joint responsibility of all English-speaking peoples.

And to you, ex-service men of Newfoundland, I bring from the British Legion our earnest appeal that as you helped us manfully in battle you will help us now in the work of peace for which the British Empire Service League has been called into being. It is not so long since we were in fact comrades in arms. We realised then, under the stress of great events and in the face of a common danger, that all parts of our great Empire stood or fell together; we are comrades still, as your reception of me today has clearly shown. Let us never forget that comradeship. It has become something that is part of ourselves; born of common suffering and hardship, and confirmed by common sacrifice. Let us make it part of the spirit of our several peoples so that they may always stand together, shoulder to shoulder as we did, for the defence of our common heritage and the peace of the whole world.

Governor Speaks

His Excellency the Governor was next called upon and he made a brief address. He had not come prepared to speak, but he was much impressed with the address of Earl Haig, and he hoped that every ex-service man present would remember and profit by the address. In this country things are not exactly as they ought to be, with regard to the ex-service men's association. The membership of the G. W. V. A. has not been as large as it might be. His Excellency felt that it is now time for all ex-service men to come together and place themselves in their right position. The war veteran is an important man in the Empire, because he has fought to defend it. The Governor expressed himself as being a staunch Imperialist. He had every belief in the Empire, the foundation stone of which was laid by Sir Humphrey Gilbert near the site of the War Memorial which Earl Haig had unveiled. The throne is the strongest link but as long as we are prepared to stand by it, there is no fear of the Empire. All things being equal, he believed that ex-service men should get the preference, but at the same time our veterans should endeavour to prove themselves capable and worthy of any such preference, that may be accorded them. His Excellency closed with an appeal for increased membership in the G.W.V.A. of which he had the honor of being the patron.

Capt. Simpson Addresses Gathering
Captain Donald Simpson, Hon. Secretary of the British Empire Service League, was next asked to speak and did so briefly. He felt that the example shown by Earl Haig was one that might well be followed by ex-service men everywhere, as his time which might well be spent in well-earned rest, was being given to the interests of the men who had followed him. He was very pleased to see such a flourishing ex-service men's association in Newfoundland, and from what he could judge since he came here the Association appeared to have gained the respect of the public and press of the country.

The aim of ex-service men generally should be to help one another in time of peace as they had done in the days of the war. In his position as honorary secretary of the British Empire Service League, he had visited many places in the Empire where Ex-Service Men's Associations were formed and he saw many opportunities for veterans to render aid to a comrade. In the British Isles at present there are about 470,000 unemployed ex-service men and though the League was endeavouring to help them, it is necessarily a slow process, and he felt that the only remedy for it is to endeavour to give these men an opportunity to emigrate to other parts of the Empire, and thus help to consolidate these countries as well as live themselves.

The meeting was then closed in the regular form prescribed for ex-service men's meetings, and with cheers for Earl and Countess Haig and His Excellency and Lady Allardyce, called by Colonel Nangle, and cheers for Colonel Nangle and the G. W. V. A., called for by Earl Haig.

A broadcasting apparatus was on the platform and the speeches were all broadcasted.

Divorces on Increase in Germany

POTSDAM, Germany, June 26—An epidemic of divorces has broken out in Potsdam, once the home of German royalty and still the place of residence of several of the former Kaiser's sons and other members of the nobility. In one day recently 87 divorces were granted by Potsdam courts, a number, it is said, that marks a precedent for all Germany.

Many Events Mark Progress of Haig Week

BAND CONCERT
On Tuesday night a Band Concert was held in Bannerman Park, as part of the week's programme. The Mount Cashel Band was present and rendered a select programme of music. Expecting another concert, as was announced, last night, a very large number of people visited the Park, but no Band was present.

PRIME MINISTER ENTERTAINS EARL

After the memorial ceremonies on Tuesday, Earl and Countess Haig were the guests of the Prime Minister at a luncheon, held at Bally Haly. In all there were forty guests present, included in which besides Earl Haig, His Excellency the Governor and party, were Colonel Nangle, and members of the G. W. V. A. executive and members of the Executive Government.

EARL HAIG REVIEWS BRIGADES, SCOUTS AND GUIDES

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Earl Haig reviewed the different City Brigades and the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides of the city, as well as those in town from Conception Bay. He was accompanied by Countess Haig, Colonel Talbot, Capt. Simpson and Colonel Nangle, and when he arrived the parade was drawn up in mass formation. Inspection was first held, after which each unit, to the music of the bands, marched past the stand where the Field Marshal took the salute.

The marching and general deportment of the members of the different organizations, was of an especially high order and the Field Marshal expressed himself as very pleased with the standard of efficiency shown.

The Officers' Mess of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, held a dinner at Grenfell Hall last night in honor of Earl Haig.

Aerial Luck Deserted Them

SALT LAKE CITY, June 27 (AP).—Lucky in the air but unlucky on land are Paul Scott and Kenneth Unger, crack pilots of government mail planes stationed here.

At Elko, Nev., recently Scott, in alighting from an automobile at the flying field, stepped into a gopher hole and broke a bone in his left ankle.

Unger, after being forced down near Elko, borrowed a mule from an accommodating farmer to travel to a telephone. Somehow the mule and Unger couldn't agree and the mail pilot was thrown, injuring his right foot.

Neither Unger nor Scott has suffered a scratch or a mishap in years of aviation.

Japan Goes To Wren For Advice

Japan is evidently determined to rebuild Tokyo and Yokohama according to the best ideas. For this purpose it has asked the Corporation of London to allow her representatives to have access to all records in existence relating to the Wren reconstruction of the City following the Great Fire.

Further light on this scheme has recently been thrown by Mr. Sydney Perks, the City Surveyor; and in particular he has got together a mass of valuable information in regard to the proposal of Wren for the construction of a quay, or embankment, light along the river-side.

The steamer Bellerby, from Montreal, entered at Musgrave town on Monday to load pit props.

This Afternoon's Reception

CITY COUNCIL PRESENTS ADDRESS.

Lord and Lady Haig are holding a Public Reception in Bannerman Park this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. The people of St. John's and visitors from outports are given a cordial invitation to be present.

The City Council will present our distinguished visitors with an illuminated address, which we feel sure, will be cherished by them as a most appropriate souvenir of the occasion. The address is the handwork of the Rev. Mother Mary Joseph Fox of the Mercy Convent, Military Road, done in finest penmanship and bordered with forget-me-nots. Mother Joseph is past the three score years and ten; but this address, which we were shown this a.m. is amongst the very best of many which she has executed commemorative of notable events in the Colony's history. To-morrow we hope to publish the address in full.

The David Morris, salt laden from Cadiz, arrived at Hr. Buffett on June 30th.

The schooner Banbury arrived at Botwood on July 1st from Glovertown with a load of lumber and cement to the A. N. D. Co. Ltd.

The schooner Robert and Arthur arrived at Botwood yesterday from Sydney with 160 tons general cargo to the A. N. D. Co.

S.S. Saxilby entered at Lewisporte on June 30th to load pit props.

"The Call To Terra Nova"

The Advocate acknowledges with many thanks the receipt of a very beautifully finished volume entitled "The Call To Terra Nova" by Mr. P. C. Mars. This compilation of splendid poems dealing with our country and in various ways, with those who died for its freedom, is presented at a very fitting and opportune time, in Veterans' Week.

The book is dedicated to Earl Haig of Bemerseyde, "by one who lived his boyhood days in the shadow of the Eildon's and within the sound of the murmuring waters of the Silver Tweed."

Mr. Mars is a Boer War veteran, a thorough sportsman and very widely travelled, who, in the words of Sir Wm. Allardye who has written a foreword to "The Call of Terra Nova," sees in our country "the real replica of his native land." It is thirty years ago since the author left the "land o' brown heath and shaggy wood" to become a Terra Novan by adoption.

Beautifully illustrated and written in an original and most interesting style, this little book speaks richly of the attractions of this oldest colony and of the bravery and loyalty of its people and merits an honoured place on the bookshelves of the general public.

The Earl Visits Fort Townsend

On Sunday His Excellency the Governor and Earl Haig visited Fort Townsend and were shown over the old Barracks by Inspector General Hutchings. It is a far cry to 1796 but the old masonry dug-outs which were constructed and other military quarters which were occupied by the English soldiers 129 years ago, proved a most interesting chapter in the events of the week. The fire hall was also inspected by His Lordship, who spoke in most complimentary terms of the up-to-date equipment and the appearance of the men on duty. Later Signal Hill was visited, and here again, there was much of interest to the Field Marshal to be seen.
